The Conference

The purpose of this conference is to gather a network of biofuel sustainability researchers from a wide range of disciplines along with industry leaders, government officials, leaders of non-governmental organizations, foundations, and other professionals to focus on a range of sustainability issues. An important outcome from the conference will be a Research Roadmap Report to define the current state of biofuel and bioenergy sustainability knowledge, gaps, and future research priorities. More information on the conference can be found at www.PanAmRCN.org.

Why Sponsor

A systems approach is essential to the development of a sustainable biofuels and bioenergy sector. Bringing together cross-disciplinary and cross-institutional teams will help to identify gaps in current knowledge and develop plans to fill those gaps. This conference aims to bring these teams together by keeping registration costs as low as possible. In order to accomplish this, support from organizations like yours is essential. It is the goal of the organizing team to tear down as many barriers to participation as possible and it is our hope that you will see the incredible value found in supporting this event. By choosing one of the packages in the outline below, you will gain recognition at the conference as an organization dedicated to advancing the development of a more sustainable future.
