Letter from the Publisher

[www.cep magazine.org](http://www.cep magazine.org)

This month we are pleased to tell you about the online version of your magazine. Although we are still technically in the "beta test" mode, [cep magazine.org](http://cep magazine.org) is available for you to peruse and to use.

First, to peruse. Starting with the January 2001 edition, complete issues of CEP exist online. The pages are pdfs, allowing you to download and read or print them at your convenience. In addition to all of CEP's outstanding technical articles, the online version includes news, features, updates and all ads and product publicity items that appear in the print version. In short, [cep magazine.org](http://cep magazine.org) is the ultimate wysiwyg- everything you see on the printed page is available online.

Second, to use. We have built into [cep magazine.org](http://cep magazine.org) some remarkable features to help CEP help you. When you scroll through an issue and see a link to a company or product, click on the pdf page and you are instantly linked to the applicable website. We think this makes your search for information infinitely faster than filling out and mailing a printed reader service card.

More user friendly features exist in the ad index and product index pages. Here you will find a link to the pdf file that includes the company you see in the index; a link to its website; and an e-mail icon that lets you send mail from the [cep magazine.org](http://cep magazine.org) site directly to them. Along with the ability to view or print pages from CEP, we hope this level of connectivity lets you take maximum advantage of your online magazine.

Soon, [cep magazine.org](http://cep magazine.org) will be a members-only area on the web. For now, the site is available to anyone; once we complete the beta test, we will impose a time limit on how long a visitor can take advantage of [cep magazine.org](http://cep magazine.org).

To peruse or use CEP Online, go to www.cep-magazine.org and register. (It is fast and easy; minimal information is required.) View the current year's issues and "kick the tires" in your new online CEP. Please remember, this is still in beta test mode, so if you encounter a problem, please use the feedback link to help us refine our site.

And as always, let us know what you think.
